

Modal verbs

All modal verbs can be used to express degrees of probability/possibility.

You have recently ordered something from Amazon and you are waiting for it to be delivered.

One day you hear the doorbell ring. Your flatmate says: “Who’s that at the door?”

How sure are you that it is the delivery driver?

Put the statements below in order of certainty. Number them 1-6 with 1 being the most certain and 6 being the least certain.

That ll/won't be the delivery driver.

That must/can't be the delivery driver.

That should be the delivery driver.

That could/couldn't be the delivery driver.

That may be the delivery driver.

That might be the delivery driver.
